

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A golf putter apparatus having a linearly elongated handle affixed at its lower end to a configured club head. The club head has a first side ridge mounted parallel to a second side ridge opposite a center bridge. The first side ridge is symmetric with the second side ridge, each having an elipsisoidal upper curvature opposite a rounded trapezoidal lower surface . With a smoother outer perimeter for allowing the lower surface to slide easily across the surface of the grass or sand upon which it will be used.

01-915